A Last year Katie Holmes' bob was a big hit and Jennifer Aniston is always popular.

The looks of love

IF cupid's arrow did not find its mark on Valentine's Day then take matters into your own hands and look love in the face.

Helping Inner West singles to grasp the look of love is Five Dock face reader Zoe Jovanovic, who said understanding how to read facial features and characteristics could help singles be lucky in love.

"Understanding which emotional/mental characteristics are signalled by different facial features will give you an insight into that person and help you understand their strengths and challenges before investing your heart," she said.

Ms Jovanovic said face reading and personology was an ancient art that had been used throughout centuries, in countries such as Rome, Japan, India and China.

"It is based on the sacred geometry of the face," she said.

"It reveals your character and how you literally face the world. We are unconsciously always reading other people's faces as we search for a deeper understanding of who is in front of us."

Ms Jovanovic said face reading could give singles an insight into a potential partner's sensuality, sensitivity, frame of mind, vitality, stamina, performance and even their emotional engagement.

See the signs

If you want a partner who will shower you with gifts then do not go out with one whose nostrils are small/tight. Flared nostrils are a sign of generosity.

If you want someone with a strong personality and is outgoing, then do not choose a person with a "button nose". Look for a prominent nose with good width in the lower part.

If you prefer a "doer" to a "thinker", then go for a person who has a wider face. Look for those with a squarish face or strong jaw line.

For those who are looking for a hot lover, look at the mouth and lips. The top lip and its fullness show the degree of sensuality and sexuality, while the bottom lip shows the freedom of vocal expression.
